

Bethney Macauley, BA, GCHSM, RN

Beth Macauley is the Chief Operating Officer of the Cancer Institute (NSW). Ms Macauley has extensive professional experience in strategic health services management and administration in the private hospital sector. Beginning her management career in health in 1993 as Deputy Director of Nursing and Operating Suite Manager, Ms Macauley became Director of Nursing at Liverpool Private Hospital in 1996. Moving to the ACT in 1998, she became Director of Nursing at the National Capital Private Hospital and later that year was promoted to Chief Executive Officer, a position she held between 1998 and 2000. In 2000 she became Regional Director (ACT) for Health Care Australia.

In late 2000 Ms Macauley was appointed by Mayne Health as Director of Hospitals in Nepean, North Western Sydney and, again, the National Capital Private Hospital in the ACT. During this period she also worked for Mayne as Medical Relations Manager for NSW, coordinating and facilitating Mayne Hospital business development initiatives throughout the state. Other experiences include the commissioning of co-located tertiary level health services, decommissioning of several private hospitals and the divestment of non-performing assets.

Ms Macauley was appointed to the Cancer Institute (NSW) in September 2003.
